I am a strongly motivated individual, determined to learn, adapt and evolve personally as well as professionally. In all aspects of life, I consistently strive to achieve the highest and best result possible with any challenge that may come my way. I believe that innovation and progress are the keys to achieving success. Together with my lifelong commitment to scientific learning, research and teaching, I believe that knowledge should be constantly pursued and shared. I possess a strong conviction in multiculturalism and believe in the many benefits of bringing people of diverse backgrounds together. The advantages of people learning from each other, sharing their knowledge with one another and expanding their understanding of the world is not only amazingly fun but highly profitable when new knowledge is brought to the table.

ACADEMIC POSITIONS

Associate Professor, Department of Computer Science, Western Washington University	09/2021 - Present
Assistant Professor, Department of Computer Science, Western Washington University	07/2017 - 9/2021
Assistant Professor, School of Information Science, University of Kentucky	08/2013 - 07/2017
Teaching Assistant, Masaryk University	09/2012 - 01/2013
Lecturer, Masaryk University	02/2012 - 07/2012

EDUCATION

Ph.D. Informatics[Computer Science]	Masaryk University, Czechia	2013
BSc/Mgr Forestry and Natural Environment	Aristotle University, Greece	2008

OTHER RELEVANT WORK EXPERIENCE

IBM IDC (GSDC) - Brno, Czech Republic, 12/2008 - 02/2009
IT System Server Operator. International Business Machines (IBM), IDC (GSDC) Brno, Responsibilities: Monitoring server applications, databases and backups Win2000/win2003/ORACLE/SQL/SAP/AIX. Support for the French branch of IBM clients. Monitoring of Tivoli problem system.
